A new testing kit was given out to 200 fourth-graders from Merrick schools Thursday morning. The Equate Kit contains oral contraceptives, pregnancy tests, birth control pills, lice treatment and an H1N1 swab. The kit was delivered by the head of health for the school district, Dr. Ann Lennerwarth. "When you're in fourth grade, you're going through some very dramatic changes," Lennerwarth said. "I'd like them to be aware of their bodies, to be open-minded to sexual education. This is where their sexual education happens." The materials are not meant to give students information, but to encourage conversation. Many students said they were not comfortable talking to their parents about sex. The school district offers health classes, but Lennerwarth said parents can help by talking about their own experiences and involving their kids in those conversations. "As a parent, as a teacher, we're all going to be living and dealing with our sexuality at one time or another," she said. After discussing the kit, Lennerwarth said the students asked a few questions, and then asked for the kit to be turned in. "The consensus of what the students said was that they really like being able to talk about this with their peers, in a setting where it's not stigmatized," Lennerwarth said. The school district provides the kits at no cost, as they are equitably distributed. The high school has also been getting kits as a part of class assignments. "It's a pretty funny response," Lennerwarth said. "They saw it as a way to bring a little fun into their class, a little education into their daily lives." Structural studies of the sulfhydryl groups of bovine NADP-specific malic enzyme.
