Almost, after the loss of a file there are chances that the file gets deleted from the android memory. Android data recovery is a data recovery software which helps you in restoring all the files which are lost due to unforeseen circumstances. This android data recovery software uses two methods to recover lost data. · If there is the presence of a root file system, then it gets automatically installed to the SD card. · If there is not a root file system then it gets automatically installed to the internal memory. Android data recovery uses the most advanced techniques to recover deleted data from the SD card or from the internal memory. Sometimes it may be the case that you lose your data due to using a computer virus which causes damage to the SD card or internal memory. Android data recovery can easily fix the problem of deleted data. You can perform Android data recovery at any point of time, you can easily recover the data within the span of 2-3 hours by just following the step by step instructions of the software. It can be easily seen that the data recovery software is divided into two segments, one of them is the basic and the other is the advanced. When it comes to the basic segment, the user can easily access the software within 3-4 minutes. To recover the data from the SD card, the user is required to tap on the “Scan” option. After selecting the “Scan” option, the software will automatically scan the SD card and will display the list of all the files and folders stored in the SD card. When the scanning process has been done, the software will automatically save all the found files into the internal memory. When it comes to the advanced segment of the software, the user has to tap on the “Data Recovery” option. After selecting the “Data Recovery” option, the user will be required to select the folder which contains the data that
